

FRP CELLULAR TOWER

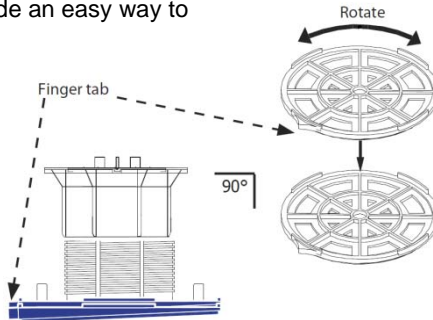

FRP Hollow-Core Panels

Our Tongue-and-Groove FRP panels are comprised of a pultruded skin over a hollow core. The panels are strong, lightweight, corrosion resistant, flame retardant and transparent to electromagnetic emissions – perfect for cellular towers.

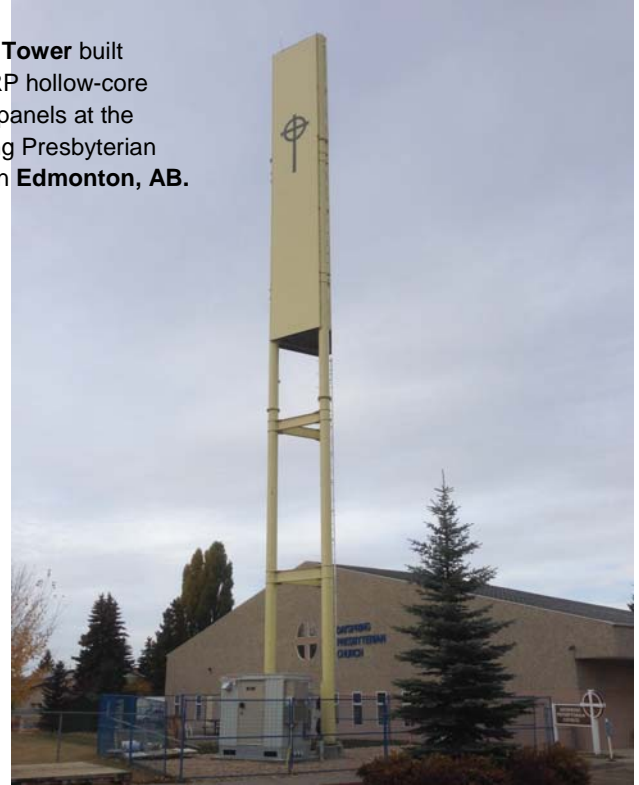

ADJUSTABLE PEDESTALS

When installing a Fiberglass Grating platform close to the ground, the surface is not always even. National Grating V-Series Adjustable Pedestals provide an easy way to create level supports for any FRP deck or platform.

Each V-Series pedestal comes with base slope compensation for up to 1/2" per foot (4%) slope. Simply rotate base pieces for precise slope compensation.

Cellular Tower built using FRP hollow-core building panels at the Dayspring Presbyterian Church in Edmonton, AB.

MOLDED GRATING DOCK

William Hogan in Kelowna B.C. used strong, light-weight Molded Fiberglass Grating to support concrete slabs for a deck on Okanagan lake in Kelowna, B.C.

CUSTOM FABRICATION

At Southwell Corp in Burnaby, B.C., we have a 12,000 sq/ft facility where we can fabricate and assemble any FRP project.

Here is a custom rack we built for Teck Resources in Trail, B.C. The racks are used to hold siphon tubes for hydrochloric acid. We made the rack using vinyl ester FRP C-channel and Angle for extreme corrosion resistance. Vinyl ester structural members are often beige in colour.

GIFFELS WESTPRO

When Giffels Westpro needed chemical canopy ladders for Teck's West Line Creek Water Treatment Facility north of Sparwood, BC, Fiberman came through once again. The cross-over ladders allow workers to safely walk over a 3-1/2 foot concrete dividing wall at 4 different locations.

Custom railing jobs can be assembled at our facility, then knocked down flat to lower shipping costs.
